'I Think They're Just Scared': Statistician Explains Why Insurance Industry Won't Concede COVID Shots May Be to Blame for Excess Deaths

Texas-based statistician and finance specialist Mathew D. Crawford, who analyzes COVID-19 data on his Substack, joined "The Defender In-Depth" podcast today for a deep dive into excess deaths, vaccine safety and why the insurance industry is sounding alarm bells over rising and higher-than-normal excess deaths.

Texas-based statistician and finance specialist Mathew D. Crawford, who analyzes COVID-19 data on his Substack, joined "The Defender In-Depth" podcast today for a deep dive into excess deaths, vaccine safety and why the insurance industry is sounding alarm bells over rising and higher-than-normal excess deaths.

Crawford said a common fallacy known as Simpson's paradox — akin to a statistical version of an optical illusion — can explain relatively lower death rates in more highly vaccinated U.S. states and countries, due to a near-perfect correlation with income and access to healthcare.

Signs were there from 2021 'but not many people were listening'

Crawford said the data indicate "an alarming increase in deaths among relatively young and even working-aged people."

"Obviously that's a concern, and it should have been a concern two years ago," he said. "We could've and should've started looking at that, and those of us who were paying close attention did see it then. But not many people were listening."

Instead, when the Society of Actuaries released a report in 2022 indicating the sharp increase in deaths in the prime age group, it was met with silence — leading "we what just seemed like an obtuse intent to avoid discussion of the vaccines."

'Healthy user bias' created false impression of COVID vaccine efficacy

According to Crawford, what the CDC data show is "that vaccine uptake pretty much follows a health-wealth curve," which "matters in terms of how the actuaries might have looked."

However, he said, "I don't think that that may have been tricked. I think they're just scared to say what's going on."

Crawford said the data indicate a "healthy user bias," wherein "wealth does good health" and where "wealthier countries have lower excess deaths." Such correlations, according to Crawford, also existed pre-COVID-19.

"You can very clearly see that the death rate — and the median household income across the entire country," Crawford said, "looking at the most granular level of data from the CDC that exists, you can see that you have in a county, the less death you have in general."

Crawford said fatalities are more highly correlated with past death rates because "in healthier countries, ... They're more conscientious and they tend to hold more college degrees and they generally have more wealth."

Yet, actuaries came up with their own data, Crawford said, indicating "vaccine effectiveness" on the basis that states with higher vaccination rates had lower mortality.

For Crawford, there are a "couple of things wrong" with this conclusion — one being that in Northeastern states that were subsequently highly vaccinated, a disproportionately large number of COVID-19 deaths occurred early in the pandemic. As a result, there were fewer people who were "low on health" later, when the vaccines were introduced.

"Even ignoring the fact that excess death gets redefined for a few states for that reason, what we have is ... a Simpson's paradox" situation, he said.

What this is, according to Crawford, is a situation where "there is this other variable at play," in the case of COVID-19, this additional variable was "giving more vaccines to the people who are in relatively better health and education," which results in a trend that goes in the opposite direction than what we would expect."

Crawford said the data "that would appropriate to indicate that there's small levels of [vaccine] effectiveness" instead indicate "medium household income effects."

"The conclusion the actuaries make that the vaccines were stopping excess death is completely unwarranted, and they really should know better," he said. "The problem is [it] can, in fact, be a real thing and it's very easy to see that it's an absolute certain that the healthy user bias makes it look like there's a little bit of effectiveness. But there is none."

He added: "When I see the Society of Actuaries coming forward and saying this ... I think shenanigans. I think that has to be a canned story," he said.

Citing existing data and insurance industry statements that indicate higher-than-average excess deaths are expected through 2026, Crawford said to blame excess deaths "on one variable (COVID-19 effects) rather than something that seems to be pushing that variable from behind, meaning the vaccines, it seems obtuse."

"A Cell Extracts Reveals Highest-Level Leaders at 'White House'. HHS, CDC, NIAID, AAP "All Roads Have Sometimes Linked to Neurotoxins", Yet Publicly Covered Up Thrilling."

Every Court received the third, 137-page release of documents from 'Attorney Edward Bodoroff's Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The FOIA request stated: "I request emails sent by and received by "Dr. Rochelle P. Walensky, Dr. Aileen A. Bangar, and Kevin Griffis (all of whom are CDC personnel) on dates beginning February 1, 2021 through May 31, 2021, containing the word 'myocarditis.'" Bodoroff's FOIA request was made because he was concerned that, as a result of the White House, knew about heart damage linked to mRNA vaccines yet colluded behind the scenes to conceal this side effect from the American people."

Murder as opposed to Manslaughter implies "Criminal Intent"

Pfizer's Covid-19 Vaccine constitutes a Criminal Act. From a legal standpoint it is an "Act of Murder" applied Worldwide to a target population of 8 billion people. Sofar more than 60 million Covid-19 Vaccine deaths have been Covid-19 vaccinated.

"Covid 'Great Reset'/"Premeditated Criminal Conspiracy", You Decide?

Dr. Martin Kulldorx op all of the evidence anyone would ever need to prove that Covid and the Covid vaccines were premeditated criminal conspiracy. Dr. Kulldorx is one of the few who believe the vaccine but whoever wouldn't find lots of evidence if we so there is still a little distortion here and there but you can still hear exactly what he's saying. As he says, he's not suggesting or alleging "he is ACCUSING certain people and the WHO of a criminal conspiracy."

I don't think that they really have been tricked. I think they're just scared to say what's going on.

That seems rather obvious, considering the emerging of any expert who doesn't parrot the official narrative are de-platformed and fired. It is understandable that few are willing to risk their career and livelihood to the official Covid narrative.

The insurance companies are owned by the same entities who own pharma, big tech, and the media. Insurance companies are owned by Vanguard, Blackrock, State Street, Goldman Sachs Group, and wealthy investors. Why would they want the insurance companies to sabotage their other interests? They wouldn't of course. So they stifle vaccine criticism from their employees. They also have their employees push the vaccine narrative because their interests are essentially when the jobs are hiring jobs. Killing the golem laying the other golden eggs is not worthwhile, they can choose to protect those golems, and do.

Am SO glad that examined one aspect of identifying COVID-19 vaccine safety signals has been posted on Trial Site News (https://www.trialsitenews.c... The SpeakTrial identified the frequency of occurrence of VAERS symptoms for three major diseases: Cancer, Cardiovascular Disease and Neurological Disease and compared the rates of these symptoms before and after COVID-19 vaccine dose. Since these symptoms occurred within +/-2.5 years maximum following the COVID-19 shots, effects of latency on long-term impacts are not known, and therefore, this analysis could occur when a full accounting of these adverse events over time has been documented.

Insurance companies are "Adverse to Biting the Hand that feeds them" when it comes to Medical Claims. They are Experts in Misdirecting Small Print.
Insurance Companies are Unfortunately One of Humankind's "Necessary Evils".
Hence their Scam for "No Claims Bonus"
You pay your premiums for Years, but ever till you eventually want to .get some Money back.
Damn Genius! :-) Check Clause 23, Subsection 5a, Item 13, ...! Or Page 53.

Very true Paul. Insurance claims are being denied and cancelled without notice or even sector of the insurance industry. Just recently, Nationwide cancelled 10,000 home owner policies in North Carolina alone and will not renew anymore policies in the future. They are not the only insurance companies doing this. It's happening all over the country. They are cancelling policies and not renewing policies in the future in ways there out if they don't protect their profits by not renewing policies. I have a business and I'm extremely concerned that I may lose my business insurance policy. I've had it for 20 years and I've never had a claim. I've had a few death certificates in every day and that will be extremely stressed out. She also told me that the bank is well aware of these sudden deaths being due to the vaccines.

Thank you Beatrice, for this update. I also think the Big Pharma companies should each take over the Boards of "PayingVictims", as there is more than enough Proof, that they "Caused the Problem". The Insurance Companies are Nothing but "Middle Men", who are "Pimps for Unproven Syrups". And Fauci Promoted the Shots and Lied about everything else. They must be Persecuted like the way they vilified the Unvaccinated. Why should Big Pharma get Golfs with their Name Engraved on them. ...

Big Pharma spends more than any other industry to promote and DEFEND their products. Do you think they're going to allow anyone to say a word about tangential social media agendas? There are companies that employ anyone, usually college students/workers, to promote vaccines, pills, etc. on social media platforms and they're paid to attack anyone who speaks out to the same Big Pharma products. They use financial control and advertising to threaten any company that does expose their products and bring any sort of negative image to them. The no companies do not want to become targets of harassment and slander by the enormous power and influence wielded by Big Pharma and Big Gov.
